This Is The Story of Bulloch County

By BROOKS and LEODEL COLEMAN
EDITOR'S NOTE—This week we publish another installment of "The Story of Bulloch County" which we began on August 28, 1957. Due to pressures for space we have been unable to include the history for the past several weeks.

Chapter VII - Installment 7

The muster roll of Company D of the DeKalb Guards was included in a book entitled "From a Soldier's Story of His Regiment, the 61st Georgia," written by Private G. W. Nichols of Jesup, Georgia. In addition to the names of the company, the writer of the book makes a brief statement about many of the soldiers. The DeKalb Guards from Bulloch County served from September 9, 1861 to April 9, 1865. The roll, with the comment by Private Nichols, is as follows:

First Lieutenant S. H. Kennedy, promoted to captain after Seven Days' Battle, wounded at Manassas; promoted to lieutenant colonel in January, 1865; severely wounded at Deep Run on February 6, 1865. He was an excellent officer and brave soldier.

Second Lieutenant J. H. Wilkinson, resigned in 1862.

Third Lieutenant J. Hoyt DeLoach, discharged in 1862.

First Sergeant J. E. C. Tillman, transferred to Company K, elected third lieutenant.

Second Sergeant James Mincey, elected to lieutenant, wounded at Manassas, Gettysburg and Monocacy.

Fourth Sergeant J. L. B. Nevils, killed at Manassas.

First Corporal E. J. Martin, wounded on Three Tops Mountain. A most excellent soldier.

Second Corporal William Lee, killed at Spotsylvania, courthouse.

Third Corporal W. A. Woods, wounded at Frederick City, Maryland.

Fourth Corporal William Holloway, faithful soldier, captured on the last retreat before the surrender.

J. W. Alderman, promoted to sergeant; missing at the Battle of Cedar Creek in 1864. John Anderson, killed at Gettysburg. J. R. Beasley, wounded at Gaines Mill; came home on furlough and never returned.

Thomas Boyet, was in nearly all the battles and was never wounded; surrendered at Appomattox, a faithful soldier. John Brannen, promoted to lieutenant; killed at Manassas.

W. H. Bland, captured at hospital in Frederick City, Maryland, in 1862, but was exchanged; was captured again at Morton's Ford in 1864; paroled March 7, 1865. Isaac Barrow, killed at Fredericksburg in 1862. B. F. Bird, died in a hospital at Staunton, Virginia in 1862. Adam Bird, detailed to a government bakery. Frank Butts, killed at Manassas in 1862. Banks died at Brunswick or Bethesda in 1862 (Note: The writer of the book must not have known the first name of this soldier Banks, since it is not given in a book).

J. A. J. Bruce, promoted to sergeant in 1861; killed at North Anna. Timothy Connell, missing in 1863. W. H. Collins, faithful soldier. Ziba J. Collins, transferred to Company K and killed at Monocacy, Maryland, July 9, 1864. G. A. Collins missing and supposed to have been killed at the Battle of Manassas. M. V. Baseball is now in full swing around the center, in all leagues, little league, mite league, junior league team, and men's softball league.

LITTLE LEAGUE
In the little league the Legion is in top position with the Jaycees close behind. The Lions and Rotary are fighting hard for third position. In this year's little league there are some eighty boys from ages 10 through 12 years of age competing.

Friday, June 13, two little league teams from Brooklet will come to Statesboro to visit the Statesboro little league. The Lions and Legion will play host for this day's games. At a later date the Brooklet teams will come back to play the Rotary and Jaycees.

JUNIOR BOYS TEAM

The Statesboro Junior Boys team, made up of twenty boys thirteen, fourteen, and fifteen years of age won their first two games of regular season play. On Monday, June 2, the Statesboro team was host to Sylvania and defeated Sylvania 6 to 5, in a very close game. On Friday, June 6 the Statesboro boys traveled to Swainsboro to win by a score of 7 to 5. John Albert Wilson was the winning pitcher against Sylvania and chalked up eleven strike outs. Roy Kennedy was the winning pitcher against Swainsboro.

TENNIS INSTRUCTIONS

This year there will be tennis instructions given to the local boys and girls who are interested in learning more about the game. The lessons will start Monday, June 16. There will be two classes, one for boys, from ten to eleven and one for girls from eleven until twelve. There will be no age limit for these lessons. The lessons will last for about three weeks and then there will be a big tournament. All who are interested are asked to sign up for these lessons as soon as possible. There will be no charge and all who want to learn more about a good game are urged to participate in this program.

Dependable supply of fresh pure water is a must for farming

By ROY POWELL, County Agent

A dependable supply of fresh pure water is a must for any farm. Such a water supply is much more of an advantage when the farm is equipped with a pressure system which can deliver this water to any part of the farm. If your farm isn't equipped with such a system you should give serious consideration to installing one. You will find that the time and energy saved plus the increased efficiency of your operation would be well worth the expense.

TYPES OF PUMPS

The heart of a water system is the pump and its power unit. A pump is one of three types: (1) the reciprocating, or piston pump; (2) the jet pump; and (3) the submersible pump. Each has its own advantages and disadvantages as each are listed below.

RECIPROCATING PUMP

Pumping unit consists of a piston operating inside of a cylinder.

Advantages—(1) always delivers the same amount of water per minute; (2) if water level drops below suction pipe, pump normally will not need to be reprimed; (3) it will supply water at any required pressure, making this type valuable where the discharge head may be high.

Disadvantages—(1) requires periodic replacement of leathers and valves; (2) delivers water in pulsations; (3) is usually noisy.

JET PUMP

Pumping unit consists of a centrifugal impeller and an ejector.

Advantages—(1) as additional faucets are opened and pressure is reduced, more water is pumped per minute; (2) is more efficient than the piston pump at low pressure and a short suction.

Disadvantages—(1) most jet pumps must be reprimed if prime is lost; (2) delivery will fall off rapidly with an increase in pressure or suction lift; (3) the jet unit may be subject to damage by abrasive materials and clogging.

SUBMERSIBLE PUMP

A multiple-stage centrifugal pump with the entire pumping unit, including motor, placed under water.

Advantages—(1) capable of delivering large quantities of water against high heads; (2) has a relative high efficiency over a wide range of discharge heads; (3) operation is quiet.

Disadvantages—(1) being located inside the casing and under water, the pump, after a long period of time, may present a maintenance problem; (2) the well casing must be large enough to accommodate the pumping unit.

SIZE OF PUMPS

The size of pump needed is determined by the recovery rate of the well and your daily water requirements. A pump with greater capacity than the well should never be installed. Either use a smaller pump or enlarge the well.

The ideal pump capacity is obtained by taking the maximum daily (24 hours) requirements of water against high heads; (2) has a relative high efficiency over a wide range of discharge heads; (3) operation is quiet.

Disadvantages—(1) being located inside the casing and under water, the pump, after a long period of time, may present a maintenance problem; (2) the well casing must be large enough to accommodate the pumping unit.

The condition is rapidly changing. Georgia poultrymen now are producing about 80 per cent of the eggs consumed in Georgia.

Health Specialist Miss Lucile Higginbotham, Agricultural Extension Service, points out that desire for food is decreased by emotional disturbances such as worry, sorrow, anger, and anxiety. This, in turn, affects body weight and health.

Learning the language of the atom

A STRANGE, NEW LANGUAGE is emerging as the uses of atomic energy in industry and research are pressed forward. These words and phrases have become familiar and meaningful to 35 Georgia Power engineers who are enrolled in a nuclear reactor engineering course. This is the first course of its kind ever offered employees by an electric company.

These engineers are also gaining knowledge through the company's participation in the construction of the developmental Enrico Fermi Atomic Power Plant near Monroe, Michigan.

Atomic fuel someday will play an important part in producing electric power. We want to bring its benefits to you as soon as possible. That's why Georgia Power engineers even now are learning the language of the atom—the language of tomorrow.
